Please note:

China has initiated a new department under the Foreign Ministry, dedicated to handle maritime and land territorial disputes, if any, with its neighbouring countries, including India. The new agency, under the name of Department of Boundary and Ocean Affairs will be mainly responsible for land and sea boundary demarcation and administration, crafting diplomatic policies and negotiating joint development at sea, Foreign Ministry spokesman Ma Zhaoxu told a news briefing in Beijing on 5 May. Earlier, those responsibilities were shared by several departments under the ministry. According to media reports, Ning Fukui, a senior diplomat specializing in Asian affairs, is appointed head of the new department. The two deputy heads, Wang Zonglai and Ouyang Yujing, are both senior diplomats dealing with boundary affairs from the department of treaty and law. Wang is an expert on international maritime law, while Ouyang has participated in border demarcations and negotiations. Because of the country's long boundary and large sea territory, it was necessary to establish a special department, Ma said. China shares a land boundary of 22,000 km with 14 countries; and is yet to finalize land demarcation with India and Bhutan. China also has a coastline of 18,000 km and maritime territory of 3 million square kilometres. The establishment of the department, which reportedly started functioning last month, coincides with escalating rows with Malaysia and the Philippines over some islands in the South China Sea. In the East China Sea, the country has yet to reach agreement with Japan over joint development in the oil-rich waters. Ma's announcement came days before the May 13 deadline set by the United Nations for countries to submit claims over extended continental shelves. Under the UN Convention on the Law of the Sea, a continental shelf of up to 200 nautical miles from the archipelagic baseline automatically belongs to a nation and no proof of claim is required. States may claim an extended continental shelf of up to 350 nautical miles from the baseline. (Renmin Ribao, Beijing, in English, 6 May 09, in BBC PF, 7 May 09)

BEIJING, May 6 (Xinhua) - China plans to conduct its sixth national population census in 2010, the State Council, or the Cabinet, announced on 6 May. The census, which begins on 1 November 2010, will survey population, age, nationality, levels of education, profession and population migration. The census will also collect data on marriage, housing, and social security of Chinese citizens, said a notice posted on the central government's official website (www.gov.cn). Vice Premier Li Keqiang will head a steering committee with members from more than 20 government departments and the army, said the notice. The last census in the world's most populous country nine years ago found there were 1.29533 billion people in China. "The population condition has undergone great changes since 2000. New findings from the 2010 census will provide accurate and scientific information for the government to map out plans for economic and social development," said the notice. (XNA, 6 May 09)

Brazil (May 19)

BEIJING, May 20 (Xinhua) - Brazilian President Luiz Inacio Lula da Silva concluded his state visit to China and left Beijing on 20 May. During his three-day stay, Lula da Silva held talks with Chinese President Hu Jintao, and met with Chinese Premier Wen Jiabao, Chinese top political adviser Jia Qinglin and Chinese Vice-President Xi Jinping respectively.The two sides signed 13 agreements on cooperation in the fields of oil, financing, loan, science, space, law, port and agricultural products, among others. A joint communique to boost China-Brazil strategic partnership was also issued. This was Lula da Silva's second state visit to China since he assumed office in 2003. (XNA, 20 May 09)

Beijing, May 20 (Xinhua) - China and Brazil will provide satellite observation data for African countries through a joint space programme, according to agreements inked here on 20 May. The Earth receiving stations of Hartebeeshoek in South Africa, Aswan in Egypt and Maspaloms in Spain will process and distribute data from the China-Brazil Earth Resources Satellite-02B (CBERS-02B) to African states. "It's also for the first time China became an exporter of Earth observation data," said Guo Jianning, general director of the China Centre for Resources Satellite Data and Application. Before that, China could only buy or share processed information such as satellite pictures from or with other countries, he said. Brazilian President Luiz Inacio Lula da Silva, at the last leg of his three-day China tour, witnessed the signing of the agreements at the Chinese space centre in the northwest suburb of Beijing. "Those agreements indicated the support and importance China and Brazil attached to African countries, which is also an example of science and technology cooperation between developing countries," Guo said. The CBERS project was kicked off in 1988 and the first CBERS satellite was launched in 1999. So far, there are three CBERS satellites in space and a fourth one is scheduled to be sent into space in 2011. Those satellites served for gathering information about land use, agricultural products estimation, water resources investigation, mine exploration, laying out of urban area, environmental protection and monitoring of coast. "The CBERS satellites have become an important data source for the world and we will continue and expand cooperation with Brazil, as well as some other countries that have show interest," said Zhang Qingjun, top Chinese designer of the CBERS project. China agreed to lend US$10 billion to Brazil's Petrobras in return for a guaranteed oil supply over the next decade, in a deal cemented as Brazilian President Luiz Inacio Lula da Silva ended a state visit. Also, China and Brazil are researching how the two nations can conduct trade in yuan and real, the latest signal that developing nations are seeking to reduce their reliance on a weakening US dollar. China is seeking to promote the yuan as an international currency after signing 650 billion yuan (HK$740 billion) in swap agreements with Argentina, Indonesia, South Korea, Hong Kong, Malaysia and Belarus in recent months.The loan will come from the China Development Bank, state-controlled oil company Petrobras said in a statement released in Beijing. Brazil will guarantee the supply of 200,000 barrels of oil a day to China's state oil firm Sinopec for the next 10 years, it added. Petrobras and Sinopec also signed a memorandum of understanding on exploration, refining and petrochemicals. The agreement for Brazil to supply China with oil was largely clinched in February, along with a memorandum of understanding on long-term financing for Petrobras. (SCMP; 20 May 09)

Hong Kong SAR with China Mainland (May 9)

HONG HONG KONG, May 9 (Xinhua) - The Chinese central government and the government of the Hong Kong Special Administrative Region (HKSAR) signed the sixth supplement to a key trade agreement to give Hong Kong firms greater and easier access to the mainland market for tourism, securities and banking services, among others. Under the supplement agreement, authorization requirements will be further eased for Hong Kong commercial banks to expand their existing networks in the neighbouring mainland province of Guangdong to cover different cities province-wide. Joint venture securities investment advisory firms between Hong Kong businesses and their mainland counterparts shall also be allowed starting Oct. 1, although the percentage of shareholding by the Hong Kong side was restricted to no more than one-third. Mainland travel agents can also organize group tours for mainland residents bounding for the province of Taiwan to enter and remain in Hong Kong in transit. The aim was to help the trade develop multi-destination package offers, said Donald Tsang, Chief Executive of HKSAR. The Supplement VI to the Mainland and Hong Kong Closer Economic Partnership Arrangement (CEPA) was signed by John Tsang, financial secretary of the HKSAR government, and the central government's Vice Minister of Commerce Jiang Zengwei at a ceremony in Hong Kong. Speaking at the ceremony, Donald Tsang said the supplement agreement introduces 29 measures that are built on the liberalization of 20 services sectors and open two more sectors to Hong Kong businesses, namely, research and development and rail transport. "With the new supplement, the total number of services sectors covered by the CEPA and its supplements will thereby be expanded from 40 to 42," Jiang said. The liberalization measures cover, among others, audio and visual services, telecommunications, legal services, convention and exhibi tion, transport, printing and publishing. Some of the measures will be first implemented in Guangdong on a pilot basis. Mutual recognition of professional qualifications will be explored and encouraged in sectors such as accounting, architecture, real property and printing services. Hong Kong pharmacists shall be allowed to sit for exams and register in the mainland. In addition to joint venture law firms, Hong Kong lawyers, upon meeting certain qualification requirements, can apply to practice as lawyers in the mainland. The new measures will take effect on Oct. 1, three months earlier than usual, to "allow the trade to enjoy the benefits earlier," Jiang said at the ceremony. Donald Tsang welcomed the agreement, saying that the new measures will be mutually beneficial and help Hong Kong overcome the impacts of the ongoing economic downturn. It is roughly estimated the service trade liberalization measures and the individual travel permit scheme under the CEPA agreements created 43,200 jobs from 2004 to 2008 in Hong Kong. The individual travel permit scheme alone contributed 58bn HK dollars (7.4bn US dollars) of extra consumption in Hong Kong. The CEPA measures, meanwhile, brought 46bn HK dollars (5.9bn US dollars) of extra income to Hong Kong businesses providing services in the mainland and created 49,500 jobs in the mainland, Donald Tsang said at the ceremony. PRC Laws and Regulations

BEIJING, May 22 (Xinhua) - China's top party officials convened a meeting to adopt regulations on officials' accountability, the party's inspection work and state-owned enterprise leaders' honesty. The meeting of the CCP CCPolitburo was presided over by Hu Jintao, general secretary of the CCP CC. According to the meeting, strengthening the system against corruption, building a clean government and improving officials' conduct, inner-Party supervision and accountability system, were an important part of the party's anti-corruption work. "To implement the official's accountability system and stick to the equality of rights and responsibilities is conducive to improving the management of and supervision over leading officials and boosting the party's ruling capability," the meeting heard. Governments and party committees at all levels were asked to "strictly act in line with the CCP's regulation on officials' accountability." The meeting also urged the party's inspection agencies to perform their duties conscientiously and step up inspection on officials' implementation of the party's guidelines and policies, the system of democratic centralism, anti-corruption work and officials' appointment and selection. It said the regulation on state-owned enterprise leaders' honesty would help strengthen state-owned companies' fight against corruption, safeguard the interest of the nation and investors, promote scientific development of enterprises and ensure the legitimate rights and interest of workers. "State-owned enterprises should implement the regulation in production and management, accelerate reforms and do more for a stable and relatively fast economic development," the meeting said. Postal Law of the People's Republic of China, amended and adopted at the 8th session of the 11th NPC Standing Committee on 24 April 2009. This law will become effective on 1 October 2009. (Presidential Decree No 12, signed by State President Hu Jintao on 24 April 2009) (RMRB, 25 Apr 09)

Chinese lawmakers on 24 April 2009 adopted the amended Postal Law after days of a second reading to better protect public freedom and security in using mail services. The amendment, first deliberated last October during the 5th Session of the 11th National People's Congress (NPC) Standing Committee, underwent the second review at the 8th session which concluded on 24 April. The law was originally adopted in December 1986. Wu Bangguo, chairman of the NPC Standing Committee, said that the law amended specified regulations on the business scope and charge of the postal service, enhanced supervision over postal and express mail services and improved protection over mailing security and clients' rights. "It (the law) is of great importance for improving postal services and meeting the needs of people's daily life and social development," he said. New stipulations include an article forbidding all organizations or individuals from opening, hiding, damaging or discarding others' letters, instead of just preventing postal workers from doing so. State and public security bureaus and agencies, however, are entitled to check, keep mail and deliveries when investigating crimes, it reads, adding courier services are obliged to offer client information if security bureaus found it necessary. No individual is allowed to spread information that may threaten national security in mail and deliveries, it notes. With regard to the express mail service, the amendment bans foreign companies from delivering letters within China for security reasons. Responding to concerns that the article might breach China's commitments to the World Trade Organization, Qiao Xiaoyang of the NPC Law Committee said that they were consistent as China in 2001 made specific commitments to open express mail services with the exception of "services monopolized by China's postal department according to the law," while the Postal Law stipulated that delivery of letters in China was a monopoly of the postal department. Qiao said the amendment would not affect the development of foreign business operations in China, nor did it create new barriers for investment and trade. The legal operations of foreign-invested delivery companies in China would continue to enjoy the protection of Chinese law, he said. The amendment also puts forward stringent threshold for newcomers, requires intra-provincial express delivery companies to have at least half a million yuan (73,240 U.S. dollars) in registered capital, and the fees for inter-provincial and international businesses amount to 1 million and 2 million yuan respectively. Decision of the NPC Standing Committee on Amending the "Rules of Procedure of the NPC Standing Committee of the PRC", adopted at at the 8th session of the 11th NPC Standing Committee on 24 April 2009. The decision will become effective on the day of promulgation. (Presidential Decree No 13, signed by State President Hu Jintao on 24 April 2009) This rules consist of seven chapters with 36 articles. (Full text of the decision and the rules: RMRB, 25 Apr 09)

China's top legislature on 24 April rectified some basic legislative body proceedings -- such mandating explanation on officials' dismissals or enforcing time limits on lawmakers' speeches, to ensure justice in legislation. Previous procedures only required profiles of appointed officials, so the legislature omitted reasons for dismissing officials, which often baffled, not only the public, but also lawmakers who knew little about those dismissed. The first such amendment since the rules of procedure were established 22 years ago was aimed at increasing efficiency and accountability of the legislature, said a document on the change from the NPC Standing Committee. The rules of procedure sets out formalities for meetings of the NPC Standing Committee, which considers important state laws and international conventions. (http://www.npc.gov.cn/englishnpc/news/Legislation/2009-04/24/content_1499969.htm, accessed 25 May 09)

Regulations on Punishing the Violation of the Law and of the Discipline in Statistics. These regulations will take effect on 1 May 2009. (Full text: RMRB, 29 Apr 09) The regulations consist of 15 articles.

BEIJING, April 29 (Xinhua) - China has issued a regulation to punish officials who forge or cover up data in statistical work. The regulation, jointly published by the Ministry of Supervision, Ministry of Human Resources and Social Security and National Bureau of Statistics on the government website on 28 April, will take effect on May 1. It is the first such regulation in China, according to a media statement. "Statistics reflect the trend of the country's social and economic development but there are acts violating law and discipline in statistical work in some regional governments and departments," the statement said. These acts affected the quality of data, undermined information backup for the country's macro-control and damaged the image of the Communist Party and the government, it said. The regulation with 15 stipulations sets out punishment measures, especially for officials who fake statistics or publish data against the country's rules and procedures. Serious penalties including dismissal, demotion, or unspecified "criminal punishment", would be imposed on people who unlawfully change statistics or ask others to do so and those who take revenge on people who refuse to fabricate data or blow the whistle on illegal acts. People who leak data concerning state secrets, personal or family information and business secrets, as well as delaying reporting of statistics, would also face similar penalties. It asks local supervisory bodies and the government to fully perform roles in cracking down on statistical corruption so as to safeguard the authenticity of statistical work. Statistical corruption has been found in China for years to exaggerate local economic growth, which is often related to officials' promotion. Earlier this month, southeastern Fujian Province said last year it handled 754 cases concerning forging statistics and imposed fines up to about 1.38 million yuan (203,0 00 US dollars). BEIJING, April 23 (Xinhua) -- China's legislation office issued a draft law on the regulation of the implementation of the Food Safety Law in the country, soliciting public opinions at the same time. The draft, released by Legislative Affairs Office of the State Council, has 57 items in nine chapters. It reiterates that food-production enterprises shoulder the primary responsibility for food safety problems, and that they should have rigorous controls on the entire production process. These enterprises should establish effective monitoring systems as for raw materials acceptance, product-storage management and production-equipment management. Related departments and administrations should be aware of their own responsibilities and should demonstrate smoother cooperation with the enterprises. The draft law also specifies some comprehensive items in the Food Safety Law, making them more practical and operational. It further stresses hospitals and clinics should report serious or suspected food-poisoning cases or food-borne disease such as cholera, salmonella and hepatitis A, to the local health bureau. The health bureau then should inform the upper bureaus or central health administrations if the situation grows serious. The regulation will be brought into effect on June 1. Citizens can leave their opinions at the Web page of www.chinalaw.gov.cn before May 4. Notes: (1) The aggregate balance of the General Revenue Account and the Funds as at the end of the financial year. Funds include the Capital Works Reserve Fund, the Capital Investment Fund, the Loan Fund, the Disaster Relief Fund, the Civil Service Pension Reserve Fund, the Land Fund, the Innovation and Technology Fund and the Lotteries Fund (which was included with effect from 1 April 2003).

The CPI(A), CPI(B) and CPI(C) respectively cover some 50%, 30% and 10% of households in Hong Kong. The average monthly household expenditure (in HK$) of these groups during the base period (i.e. Oct. 2004–Sep. 2005) were $4,000–$15,499, $15,500–$27,499 and $27,500–$59,999 respectively. Taking into account the impact of price changes since the base period, the monthly household expenditure ranges of the CPI(A), CPI(B) and CPI(C) adjusted to the price level of 2007 are broadly equivalent to $4,100–$16,100, $16,100–$28,900 and $28,900–$63,200 respectively, and that of the Composite CPI is broadly equivalent to $4,100–$63,200. The Composite CPI is compiled based on the expenditure patterns of all these households taken together.
