

The Lebanese Oil and Gas Initiative (LOGI), in cooperation with the GIGA German Institute of Global and Area Studies (GIGA) and the University of Southern Denmark (SDU), is pleased to invite you to a panel discussion happening on the 15th of March 2019. The panel is entitled:

“The Decreased Price of Oil as a Challenge for Lebanon”

The organizers – Diana Kaissy (LOGI), Martin Beck (SDU) and Thomas Richter (GIGA) firmly believe in the importance of having a panel with renowned Lebanese experts on the impact of the decreased price of oil on Lebanon, in particular in terms of the gas sector, fiscal policy and socio-economic effects.

Details about the panel, location, and RSVP can be found below.

Panelists

- ❖ Mohamad Karaki (Assistant Professor of Economics at LAU)
- ❖ Diana Kaissy (Executive Director of the Lebanese Oil and Gas Initiative)
- ❖ Kamal Hamdan (Managing Director of the Consultation and Research Institute (CRI))

Moderator: Martin Beck (Professor at the University of Southern Denmark)

Date & time	March 15, 2019 11 AM till 1 PM
Location	Building 1280, Room 2 Beirut Digital District (BDD), Bachoura, Beirut
RSVP	To confirm your attendance, kindly fill out this google form